This Week...

Well, I over planned last week, so some of these things might look familiar!

•English Language Arts

- We are continuing to work toward our individualized reading goals. These have been a great experience thus far as well as a lesson in personal responsibility.
- In writing we will be revising (ARMS) and editing (CUPS) our Lansing stories so that they are ready to be published in time for conferences.
- I know we are reading a story out of our reading book this week, and I know that I looked at it last week, but I left my book at school. ☺ I'll email you to let you know the title of the story.

•Math

- We are continuing on in our problem solving and algebraic studies.
- Stay tuned for the next Rocket Math schedule, I hope to send it out in the next couple of days. It will cover November and December.

•Science

- We are starting a brand new Life Science unit. This week we'll be introduced to the vocabulary of the unit. We'll also learn about animal groups & life cycles this week.

•Bible

- We continue to study in depth the stories of Abraham and the covenants God made him. This week our stories are:
- God's covenant with Abraham
 - 3 Visitors
 - Sodom & Gomorrah
 - Isaac's Birth

•Homework

- In addition to our regular homework this week, students have one extra assignment due on Tuesday. I'm going to send home a piece of graph paper and they'll be responsible for copying over and fixing the math problems they got wrong on their subtraction assessment. There were a number of errors and I'm wondering if the tiny font on the test was a factor.

Conferences...

This week Wednesday report cards will be sent home. I do not write comments on these first quarter report cards, since I will be meeting with all of you later this week.

I am looking forward to seeing all of you and am praying that it is a productive time as we discuss your child!
